CRITICAL THINKING IN ENGLISH IN THE INTERNATIONAL CLASSROOM

Anthony G Shannon

Commercial Education Society of Australia

Abstract: This poster is more like a road map through the forest of teaching international undergraduate students, where critical thinking can be lost in a maze of distracting side paths or because it is disguised in ways with which the western mind is less familiar. The students often come from cultures where both the appearance and the substance of learning may be less apparent. Limited English-speaking backgrounds may be disguised with memorization.
